An aerial photograph of a wide, tree-lined boulevard in Barcelona, Spain. The boulevard is filled with people walking and is flanked by tall, leafy trees. On the right side of the boulevard, there is a large, classical building with a red-tiled roof, which is the Royal Academy of Sciences and Arts of Barcelona. The background shows a dense urban landscape with many buildings and a mountain range in the distance under a clear blue sky.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES AND ARTS OF BARCELONA

Welcome to the Royal Academy of Sciences and Arts of Barcelona (RACAB)

This institution, with more than 250 years, is located in an eighteenth century building, in the city centre. In its conference room, Albert Einstein exposed the relativity basis. In the adjacent room there rest a Billeter astronomical clock dated in 1869 which indicates the time and also the exact position of some planets, the Earth, the Moon and the Sun until 2029. This is a building where the passion for architecture and the devotion to science are amazingly represented.

The wide variety of rooms can accommodate corporate events of different nature, excellence and uniqueness as premier reference: presentations, breakfast and dinners, conferences, commercials, fashion shows, recordings, weddings, press conferences, etc.
